Alumnus disappointed by 20th class reunion snub

DEAR ABBY: I recently found out that my 20year high school reunion took place and I wasn't invited. I'm still occasionally in touch with several friends from high school and easy to find on social media. I did attend my 10-year reunion, although I may not have received an invite myself because I went as part of a group.

I wasn't very popuiar or close to the "ın′ I was social, albeit quirky. I'm sure it was a simple oversight, but I'm having trouble getting past this. I keep thinking about the trope of the loser in high school coming back to the reunion to shine.

because I wasn't even asked. I'm not sure I could have gone because I have two babies at home, and we are still somewhat COVID-cautious, but it hurts not to have been invited. Any suggestions for how to stop feeling slighted?--UNWELCOME IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR UNWELCOME: Think back. Did you sign up for the alumni association when you attended that 10-year reunion? I'll bet you didn't because if you had, they wouldn't have left you alone and you would be receiving appeals for money and current information. I am pretty sure your omission from the guest list was an oversight. To prevent it from happening again, all you have to do is be proactive about making sure you are included in the next one.

DEAR ABBY: My common-law husband and my daughter don't get along. Even though he is good with kids, she doesn't want him around her children. The last time we were at her home, he got upset with me. He demanded at www.DearAbby.com we leave and went out to or P.O. Box 69440, Los

DEAR ABBY

Jeanne Phillips

Now, a year later, my Abby, I feel pathetic husband still will not acknowledge any wrongdoing, nor will she. I'm stuck in the middle. He has threatened that if I spend time with her, he will spend time away from home. I am not choosing him over my kids. How can I handle this? -- JUST WANTS PEACE IN CANADA

DEAR JUST WANTS PEACE: Handle this by A Better Way to Retire! stepping out of the middle. If you want to see your granddaughters, visit them alone. If your common-law husband follows through on his threat to spend time away from home, that would be the perfect time for him to do it. If you can't trust him while you take a little family time off, then you don't have much of a marriage -- common-law or otherwise.

TO MY READERS: The eight days of the Jewish holiday of Hanukkah begin at sundown. Happy Hanukkah, everyone. A joyous Festival of Lights to all of us. -- "LATKAS" OF LOVE, ABBY
