

Couple's evolving romance now includes parenthood

PRODUCED BY THE ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT OF TPC HOLDING

DEAR ABBY: I have been seeing the same man for a year and a half. In the beginning, we were, basically, friends with benefits, and we were OK with that. Having both gone through recent breakups or divorce, neither of us wanted anything serious. However, after six months passed, I started falling for him. He always made clear that if he didn't want to go down that road, we would break ties, but the way he acted indicated that maybe one day there would be more.

After eight months, we found out I was two months pregnant. Our baby changed how we both felt about a relationship, but we had things we needed to work through before going down that road. I started therapy -not for him, but because I knew I needed it for myself and, ultimately, our daughter.

We moved in together five months ago. Being together with our daughter has been wonderful. It has made me fall even more in love with him. When I recently told him I want to officially be his lady, he said there are still a few things he wants me to work on -- not personality changes, but things like the fact that I'm pushy. I recognize I can be that way, and impatient too, but I feel I wouldn't be so pushy if he gave me more definitive answers. What do you think about this? -- READY FOR A REAL RELATIONSHIP

DEAR READY: applaud you for seeing a therapist to work through your issues. Now I think the time has come for you and this man to seek couples counseling to determine whether you can iron out your differences.

because you WILL be co-parenting for a long time, regardless of the direction your relationship takes.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own a parrot we take with us pretty much everywhere. He draws a lot of attention and questions from strangers, which I'm usually happy to answer.

You might be surprised at how many people own or have owned birds, and many of them love to share their stories about Furniture how their parrot or parakeet died. (It's often from neglect or improper care or breeding.) These stories are often related in a jovial way, as if they should be amusing or Hardwood for sale, $350/ relatable. It really upsets me to have to stand there nodding with fake amusement or sympathy. I am tempted to say something 1) Rugger Mini-14 Ranch Rifle
